Attached is the official file on [] study, "Intelligence Planning Guidance for the 1970s," which was done under NIRB, NIPE auspices. I have retained one copy of the TS version and one copy of the [] for [] files, and one copy of each for the PRG reference library. The remaining copies are turned over to you. As you can see, there was a broad distribution on this study, with 34 copies of the TS version going to office of Training. We have not had any calls for this recently. You may wish to hold the extra copies for a while and then destroy, or you may wish to send them to Records Center, and ask them to hold for a specific period and then destroy. I have have included three different draft versions in the official file per our telephone conversation. My feeling, however, is that these just clutter up the file. The changes from one version to the next are generally small, involving a paragraph here and there, and unless someone were a real die-hard, it would be next to impossible to note where the changes occurred. I would simply destroy them, and leave the printed version for the record.
